Description

Designed to operate in even the most demanding environments, the PS Series are unique icemakers which operate without a thermostat which means they can be comfortably installed in ambient temperatures as low as 5°c but thanks to the tropicalised condensing unit they can also cope in high ambient temperatures of up to 40°c making them one of the most versatile ice makers available on the market today. The PS series utilises a paddle production system which doesn't need water pumps or spray jets making it a lot less susceptible to limescale build up than other production methods.#
